Name of Activity: Intercollegiate Research Proposal Presentation Competition "KAIZEN- A Continuous Progress" organised under AAROH 2026

Conducted by : Economics Department and Economics Club

Day and Date: Saturday, 17th Jan 2026 at 1000 am to 1130 am in NDP Room NLDIMSR

Name of Teacher Incharge: Prof. Neha Satoliya

No. of Participants: 8 Teams

Name of the Judge: Dr. Neeraj Gupta

Description of Activity:

The Department of Economics successfully organized an Intercollegiate Research Proposal Presentation Competition with the theme “Viksit Bharat”, focusing on field-based economic research and grassroots-level analysis. The competition aimed to encourage students to design research proposals rooted in real-life observations and socio-economic conditions of Bharat, thereby strengthening their research aptitude and analytical skills.

Students presented well-structured research proposals covering themes such as rural development, livelihood patterns, education, healthcare, infrastructure, migration, and sustainable development. The presentations demonstrated a sound understanding of research methodology, problem identification, objectives formulation, and the relevance of empirical data in economic studies.

The proposals were evaluated by Dr. Neeraj Gupta, an esteemed academician, who provided constructive feedback and valuable suggestions to the participants. His insights helped students refine their research approach and emphasized the important and observational studies in producing meaningful economic research. Overall, the competition served as an effective academic platform to promote research orientation, critical thinking, and practical application of economic concepts, aligning with the department’s objective of experiential and outcome-based learning.

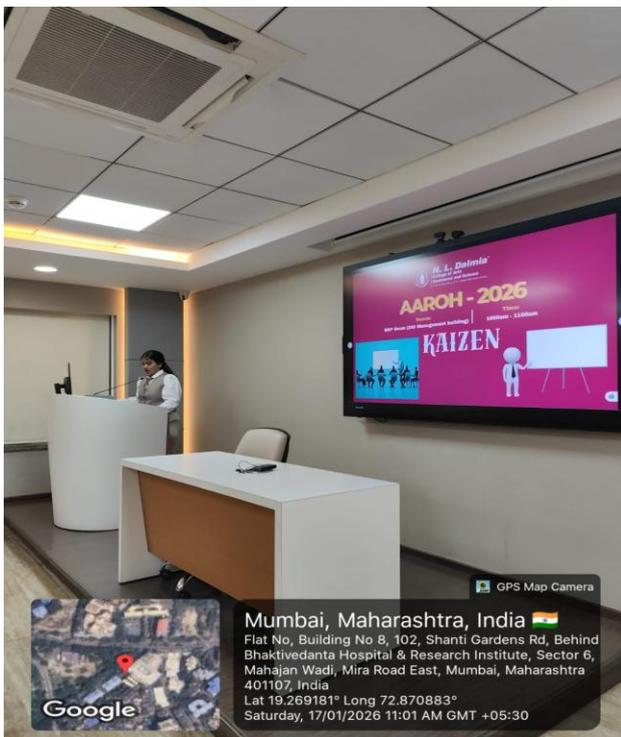

Student Volunteer: Shrey Modi, Kkrishna Agarwal, Laraib Raza, Allhan Charoliya

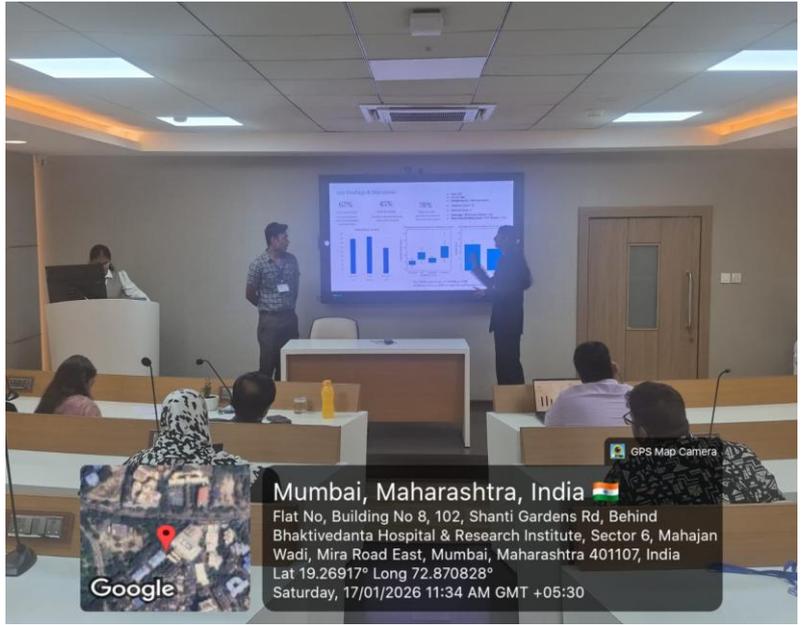

Feedback of the Session:

The feedback collected from participants reflected an overwhelmingly positive response to the competition. Most of the students appreciated the theme “Viksit Bharat”, stating that it provided a practical and field-oriented perspective to research, making the activity more engaging and relevant. Participants found the competition helpful in enhancing their understanding of research methodology, problem formulation, and proposal structuring.

Overall, the feedback indicates that the competition successfully achieved its objective of fostering research aptitude, analytical thinking, and experiential learning among students.
